

Post Acceptance

Your article has been accepted for publication!

What happens next:

The editorial office may ask for final file updates before moving your article into production

Review your proofs

Check your email inbox for a link and instructions for accessing your page proofs

Review your proofs, answer editor queries, and provide any missing information

Return proofs within 48 hours

Sign your license

Check your email inbox for a link and instructions for accessing Wiley Author Services

Choose and sign your publication license

Check if your institution requires you to select a specific license type

Paying your APC

Pay any applicable Article Publication Charges (APCs) if you publish your article as open access

You might have a discount or full APC coverage. Be sure to check if you're eligible for any institutional, geographic, or society discounts

Our production staff will typeset your article into the journal style

Make sure to share your article with your personal sharing link that grants anyone full-text read access

Your article is published on Wiley Online Library!

Did you know that promotional tools such as video abstracts alongside your article can help boost the reach of your article?